The above should be expected of every adult and taught to every child and made the human law for all.
If harmers were punished we could have a wonderful world.

Freedom of speech and media safeguards freedom.
Our Constitution and Universal Declaration of Human Rights gives us many Freedoms.
Where they censor speech, information and books they will take away your freedom.

FREEDOM ISN'T FREE, MANY DIED FOR YOURS. We veterans remind you to: Be vigilant and be prepared to fight threats to your freedom. There are many here who are secretly against our way of life. Remember 9-11, Boston massacre, Detroit bomber, Mslm terrorists who nearly cause hundreds of deaths of children and Warren workers in 2026. And over 49,000 Mslm terror attacks since 9-11 worldwide and killing nearly 200 in USA.

And there are the greedy 1% who have excessive wealth dodge taxes, and Corporations who don't pay a living wage. We now have the resources to provide good clothing, food, housing, medical care and education to all citizens..

Before the first entry we acknowledge that there are many Heroes and Volunteers who declined to have their names put in this history because they choose to do good work anonymously. I will call these our Anonymous Heroes. Several of these have put in hundreds of hours doing good work in our community. We give them our thanks and gratitude for their wonderful works.

Fouts, James R. Mayor In his first remarks he stated that this city government will be by the people and for the people and that his decisions would be based on what was best for the community. He quoted President Truman who justified decisions by asking will it benefit the average citizen. Historian comment: It appears that he has tried to do that. I try to remain non political but whether you like him or not from what I see is that he appears to be an excellent mayor. There are other things you may not have seen about him such as personal contributions, donations, public service announcements and bulletins and several other things that point out that he appears to be trying to be the best Mayor of Warren possible. I am not a personal friend of his and we have not always agreed on everything. But as historian I have to give credit where credit is due and although it is impossible to compare mayors it is my observation that James Fouts will most likely be judged by historians as an excellent mayor. As to his personal life, that is and should remain his own business and private.

Fouts, James Served on the Warren City Council from 1981-2007. City councilman, Downtown Development Authority Board 2011, 2012, Employee Retirement Board of Trustees Warren Council 1981-2007 Warren Mayor Nov 10, 2007-Became Warren Mayor Nov 10, 2007-

Franklin Chris Vietnam

Franklin, Ben This man is probably the most famous American. He is mentioned here because he had an influence on and helped create our America. He provides an excellent example for young people and every student of history should read his autobiography. Franklin was good at nurturing the common areas of agreement and then maneuvering the discussion into a common consensus. (David Eisenhower) Ben Franklin: was born in 1708, was apprenticed to his brother James 1718 as a printer; he wrote Silence Dogood essays published 1722; established a newspaper; established first library in America in 1731. He was a scientist, diplomat and one of the fathers of our country. Some of the sayings attributed to him are: Franklin's Maxims: Silence. Speak only what will benefit others or yourself. Order. Let all things have their places. Let each part of your business have its time. Resolution. Resolve to perform what you ought. Perform without fail what you resolve. Frugality. They do not own the memorials or the cemetery. This was done in secret without a vote of the membership or a public hearing. Nothing was found wrong with these memorials at a public meeting afterwords. This shows disrespect to our soldiers and those who died including 400 policemen and firemen. We veterans want these memorials replaced. See macombhistory.us for details.

Gemmill Fred Veteran U S Marine Corps WWII, assistant to Supervisor of the Warren Division of Public Service and Engineering 1960s. Fred did much historical work including doing the writing of the "Warren from trails to Freeways" book in collaboration with Sue Keffer and Wes Arnold. Fred has written numerous short historical articles but seldom gives himself credit. He is one of our outstanding people.

Gemmill Richard WWII

Gemmill Frederick Autobiography 2008 I do not know if there are very many residents in Warren who as their lives creep to their conclusions, believe that their own experiences have been very pleasant and rewarding. I am one of them! GENES FROM WAY BACK: I have what might be termed the usual background of a Michigander. My grand- father Gemmill was an abandoned kid of Scotchish-Irish parents adopted out of a London orphanage and brought to Canada at a young age subsequently moving to to the thumb area of Michigan. He was something of a small farmer/handyman. His wife, my grandmother Gemmill I met only once and that was the day she died of TB at home in Cass City. My grandparents on the other side both emigrated to Michigan via Ellis Island from Germany raising a family of three sons and two daughters as small farmers near Wilmot, Michigan (also in the thumb area near Cass City) GENES FROM CLOSER TO HOME: My mother the youngest of the two daughters was born in Brown City (in the thumb area near Port Huron) had a grade school education with little work experience. My father was born in Cass City in a family of six (three of each sex) and worked as a brakeman on a railroad, a maintenance man at the local power plant, and eventually apprenticed to the local barber which became his trade. I have two brothers.

I came into this world according to my mother's story one wintry morning in October at,home (which was on the second floor of my dad's barber shop and pool hall). The business failed during the depression and we moved to Kingston, Cass City, Pontiac, Cheboygen, St. Clair Shores, Detroit and then Warren, coming here in 1933. We were moderately poor most of the time. My parents were fairly strict~ mother quite religious and a great housekeeper and cook. My dad taught us the basics of sports competition and encouraged us in everything we tried. Neither had any reluctance to deliver discipline when they thought it warranted. EARLY SCHOOLING: I spent my entire elementary school years in the Van Dyke Public Schools starting out at Washington at Hoover and Nine Mile, then Lincoln Elementary. We walked every day and thought nothing of it. After moving from our home on Stephens Road near Van Dyke my parents rented a home on Chalmers near Federal. In 1939 we moved to a home on MacArthur(rented)for two years before finally buying a starter house on Jewett at Automobile in 1941 (where I have lived ever since). School came easy to me getting very good grades~always bringing work home and enjoying the favoritism of teachers when they found out I had enough artistic ability to draw scenes each month on the black board above the new month of the year. The kids in the neighborhood made ice ponds in winter for skating and games mowed fields for baseball diamonds in summer. I did odd jobs and chores for money to take in Saturday cowboy shows at the Motor City Theater worked on area truck farms or golf courses, hired out as insulation installers to a local builder in Warren two summers and even enjoyed dancing once in a while at Roth's Barn if you could sneak past the door guard. I nearly got in serious trouble one day when I became angry enough to leave home for the open road after a disagreement with with one of my brothers. After one day hiking northward common sense prevailed and I returned home. Incidentally my Dad met me at the back door with a very short warning: "Do that again and don't bother to come back!" THINGS GET TOUGHER IN HIGH SCHOOL: I found high school very easy. I never missed a day in attendance, got nearly all top grades (was tied at graduation for the best academic record) and had a nice groups of close friends, both guys and gals. I was President of my Senior Class (gave a speech at commencement at the Theater), worked as Editor of the Rail-splitter (writing some controversial sports stories knocking the coaches closed group of favorite athletes) got acquainted with the paper's printer (Harold Stilwell), became friends with Principal Max Thompson, and learned a great deal about the workings of the Board of Education and the educational system as it operated in the suburbs. I worked after hours as apprentice clerk (unpaid) at the National Bank of Detroit branch at 8 mile and Van Dyke. I was in the center of Detroit on bank business when the race riots broke out along Jefferson near Belle Isle and had to make it back to Warren at night by making a series of changes on the street car lines. This was first exposure really to what was going on between some blacks and whites in Detroit and the terrible hatred that had built up over the years. This was just before my graduation in 1943 and my induction six months later into the US Marine Corp under the draft. I LEARN ABOUT OTHER. PLACES AND PEOPLE: The only good thing about the draft I thought at the time was that I got to 1eave the bitter cold of Detroit for the sunny shores of San Diego, California and the Marines Recruit Depot. I actually was drafted into the Navy, but since I dreaded the water so much I opted to volunteer for the Corp. (They did not get enough to fill their Detroit quota so they drafted several from the pool I wondered about my decision when I saw a very healthy looking six-foot guy break down and cry when his name was called). Anyway, the rail trip to the coast was not a happy trip, what with a train with no ventilation system to speak of and having to sleep in your seat for five days, besides worrying about what lay ahead. I think everyone has seen enough movies about service life to know What recruits go through in long marches, combat training, shots (the vaccination type), sleeping with your rifle because of some mis-step, mess duty (nearly a joy surprisingly), the pure physical exhaustion to point of choking into a faint, and living with some men who apparently had not matured properly. Anyway, I earned a marksman's medal for rifle firing, "graduated," went to Camp Pendleton near LosAngles for advanced infantry training, and then had a seven day leave (it took three days train ride to get to Detroit, one day home, and and three days ride back). At that point. I was loaded like cargo on a troop ship and spent three lousy days riding the swells off the Pacific Coast before we finally headed west where I was to find out about World War II. BEAUTIFUL GUADALCANAL AND OKINAWA: In September, 1944 we landed on this small island after the infantry had cleared it of most of the Japanese soldiers (some still were hiding in inland caves and jungle), and it was here that I became a member of the Sixth Marine Division of the Third Amphibious Corps. I was put in the division headquarters and given the assignment of encrypting messages and coding incoming traffic. It was soon apparent why I got the job since I was only one of two with the educational background who did not need basic skills training. It was; to be my job for the next one-and-a-half years. After more training on Guam Island. we became part of one of the last seaborne invasion forces every assembled and proceeded to attack one of the largest Japanese bases and the closest to the homeland. We went over the side of the troop side via a rope ladder swinging in the breeze. hopped into a Landing Ship Tank and took off for the shore of Okinawa 1700 yards away. WI\" waded the last 300 yards over a cora1 seabed against very minimal enemy opposition (the Japanese choosing to confront the troops inland in well prepared fortifications. (Note: There is an excellent book on the battle tor Okinawa and the Sixth Division written by the Infantry Journal Press, Copyright of 1948 so I'll not go into any part of that, except my small part in it with the big picture or battle details.) Since the invasion took place on April 1, it could be expected that tropical rains would soon be a daily thing, and so it was that the next few months were a constant battle to stay alive by always being alert to what was going on, trying to keep dry or hanging clothing to dry when the chance came, sleeping in wetness all around you, battling diseases as best you could,always watching out for the next mortar round to come slamming in nearby or whistling overhead and still trying to figure what in heck our company commander was trying in put into code in his last message (they were just garbled nonsense). The worst part came when you drew perimeter guard duty on a moonless night and Japanese snipers had tried to get into the compound just the night before. Every bush looked like a creeping person and every wind movement made your heart pound as you tried to decide to shoot first and ask later. We saw some of the spectacular warship vs airplane attacks every to occur off the shore of Okinawa as each night suicide pilots tried to wipe out the protecting ring of ships the Navy set up. The night skies sometimes were just lit up with exploding shells, planes or ships. By October, the Marines and a supporting Army division had killed or captured every Japanese soldier and freed the unfortunate islanders from their nightmare. By the time we got back to our rear base on Guam, the Air Force had dropped its atomic bombs on the mainland of Japan and the leaders had surrendered to the Allies. CIVILIAN LIFE BEGINS ANEW : After returning home I spent about six months trying to figure out what I wanted to do, all the time telling everyone I wanted to go to college. Finally I happened to meet Superintendent Max Thompson at a football game at Lincoln's stadium and he pressed me to tell him what I intended to do now. After mentioning that enjoyed my experience on the Railsplitter and liked writing, he suggested journalism. I agreed but did not do much about it. One day I had a phone call from Mr. Thompson, who indicated he had sent my transcripts to Northwestern University in Illinois and the University of Missouri, both of which had excellent Schools of Journalism, he contended. He said: "They both accepted, all you have to do is apply. Now get off your lazy ass and make something of your talents." Within a month I was enrolled and boarding with a nice Columbia couple off-campus and approved for benefits under the GI Bill. That city, half-way between St. Louis and Kansas City, was a typical southern small town about to be swamped with ex- GIs and their wives. I had little trouble getting through the first two years, even making the honor roll. After two summers of working on vacation at the Chevrolet Gear and Axle Plant in Hamtramck on the assembly line (to get enough money to return to college for the last two years), I concentrated on working on the college's news paper. This meant competing with the local reporters and still doing school work. I liked the editorial writing so much that I put my energies into it and did well enough to win an award for "Best Editorials." I graduated in June, 1950 with a Bachelor of Journalism degree. MAKING A LIVING: I almost immediately decided I would start small and work up to the big dailies, like the Detroit Free Press. Thus, I hired on as a reporter with the local South Macomb Record Review/Warren Township Journal weekly with offices at Nine Mile and Van Dyke. I covered every aspect of Warren, crime, government board sessions, editorials, sports civic organizations, schools, etc. for six years, finally moving up to Editor and Publisher.. During my job as a journalist, I learned that there certainly are a lot of forces at play in local government and that included our Boards of Education. There were two very evident power groups in Warren, one headed by Arthur Miller on the township scene and the other led by Irvin little at the school/township level. Some such associations are normal, largely based along lines of old friendships or similar business interests. They become bad when used to further purposes that have very little to do with community advancements of mutual goals but instead for someone's personal advancement if not monetary reward. When I exposed these relationships, most people seemed to believe it was just friends helping friends. The district continued to get grants from the federal government for special projects (even a new school), the employees hired by the district to do such things as janitorial work on the midnight shift were retained, and that's the way it continued until the congressman died. There were some people who did care, however, because the paper began to get left out of the loop when special meetings of the school board were held at off hours at unusual places, false stories were fed to us and the paper's main advertiser (also a supplier to the schools) found that the Progress was a better deal for its advertising. It was at this point I found other work. A NEW PROFESSION: After leaving the paper in 1956, I obtained a job as an inspector in the Division of Engineering under Clarence P. McGrath, with offices in a small building at Memphis and Nine Mile behind the police department. I learned on the job about pavement, sewers, and sidewalks in new subdivisions (sometimes watching as many as three new sites at once) and doing paper work in the office (Which had only one clerk).I eventually became acquainted with the office well enough that Mr. McGrath brought me inside and promoted me to his Assistant. I stayed at that position while the township became a city in 1957 and we moved to the new city hall. I remained there for 32 years, retiring in 1987. MY LIFE AS A CITY INSPECTOR: After living the active life of a reporter/editor running from one story or interview I took up the life of a construction inspector) learning on the job) running from one site to another (often overseeing three subdivision projects at once. I was under the tutelage of Chief Construction Inspector Louis J. Vandenbossche, a very experienced employee but largely self-taught. I was taken to sites of sewer and water main installations, street pavings, and sidewalk installations and watched and listened to my instructor and learned to handle the friendly contractors the City had hired or the developers employed. I kept a daily log of anything of note and had little trouble fitting into the departments' routines. I met many hard-working laborers and pipe installers and some less-than-honest contractors (always looking for "shortcuts or just plain little cheating practices). Contractors soon learned I was smart enough to know What construction standards were and that I would catch anything going wrong before it was covered up. The inspection work" actually got less and less as the City Engineer (C.P. McGrath) and his assistant (George Eckstein) found I was even better at paper work in the office. At about this time, the new City Hall at Van Dyke and 12 Mile was being finished and in 1957 we moved into new offices there as part of the new Department of Public Service. SOME THINGS I LEARNED: Before leaving this subject (and from a perspective of 50 years contemplation), some comments may be in order about the City'~ Division of Engineering. First, they were fortunate to have had some very talented, ethical and dedicated persons serving as as City Engineers during the building boom era (I have reference to Kenneth Van Hoest, George Eckstein and C. P. McGrath), all of whom stood up under intense pressure from developers using political influence to seek concessions in standards relating to utility installations. It happens in every city, to some extent but our guys made developers and contractors give future home buyers what they deserved and expected. One observation I could make was that paving of streets and sidewalks in new sub- divisions (essentially placed on farm soil rather than existing surfaces as in the older sections of the city) did not last the expected 25 years or so as projected. The new department of public service: With the new City Charter approved in 1956 and coming into effect on January 1, 1957 there also c~e into existence a new concept in public service, consolidating services under the umbrella of one person to whom the Mayor could look for a unified standard of performance. This department was headed by the former Township Engineer C. P. McGrath. He now headed the Divisions of Engineering, Water Supply, Public Works (streets), Waste Water Treatment, Service (complaints), Buildings and Safety Engineering (permits and building inspections) and Maintenance (building upkeep). The DPS Director appointed, with the Mayor's approval, a Division head, who met regularly either with others or individually, with Kr. McGrath. It must be noted that "Mac" was much too prone to belief that each of his appointees was doing his best and needed little help from him. This proved not to be true, and future DPS Directors (Mason Capitani, Stanley Dayne, Paul Van Branden, Mitchell Skotarczyk, Robert Slavko and others) became micro managers needing to know everything that went on everywhere (another impossibility, of course). MY ROLE GROWS AND EXPANDS: As time went on, I became an assistant in the true meaning of the term, but I also carved out a special place in two areas (new in the sense that no one else had ever held my position between the years of 1957 and 1987): I became something of a departmental spokesman before Council when our items came to that body for approval. With my long experience, I could meet with people during public hearings on special assessment paving and sidewalk programs, always kept current on complaints coming into divisions and how they were (or were not) being handled, and could answer most questions raised by Council persons without some check on that and report back." I personally handled most sidewalk programs from inception as a program to approval of the assessments after completion. I conceived and carried out the concept of parking lots behind businesses along Van Dyke, going from picking appropriate sites, working with business owners and sharing costs, taking bids to building the lots (after acquiring lands through negotiations with the City Attorney's office) and closing out the programs with erections of identifying signs. EVERYTHING COMES TO AN END : During my tenure with the city, I played on the City Golf League, organized an Adult Tennis Club, staged Christmas parties with employees and Division Heads, took Traffic Engineering classes, represented the City with the Clinton River Water-Shed Council (serving one year as President), was the City"s representative on the Southeast Michigan Red Cross Council, the Macomb Community Services Agency, the Junior Chamber of Commerce, The Toastmasters Club and at times led the Torch Drive. While playing tennis one night after work in 1983, I had a heart attack that pretty much brought an end to my career in 1987, after 321 years with the City Warren. LIFE GOES ON: After about five years of laying around and catching up with things around the house, I joined the Warren Association of Retired Employees (new President) the Community Development Corporation of Warren (now Board Chairman), the Warren Historical Society (now Treasurer) and the Lincoln Neighborhood Association of South Warren (now Secretary-Treasurer). MY PERSONAL LIFE : I skipped one part of my life that I will briefly cover now. In 1962 I married a young divorcee named Carolle Popour (27) in Mt. Calvary Lutheran Church. It ended two years later in divorce, and it was only recently that I re-connected to my step daughter (then 2 years old) now living in Florida (another computer miracle, I suppose). The 6-year old step son was having troubles then with issues obeying rules and in later life it caused him great grief. The girl, Victoria, is a divorced mother of two grown children and is running a catering!

consultant business with National Football League connections (the Miami Dolphin players.) MY parents, of course, passed away long ago, but I still have an older brother living out retirement years in Warren less than a mile from my house, and a younger brother and I own a house on Saginaw Bay near Caseville. A CLOSING: THE GOOD MAN PROLONGS HIS LIFE; TO BE ABLE TO ENJOY ONE'S PAST IS TO LIVE TWICE. Preface to the Iliad (Incidentally, you may think the job of an inspector for the City is an easy one, but think of the following circumstance they always encounter: A contractor is installing the main line sanitary or storm sewer and they might be working some 20 or so feet below ground level. It is the inspector's task that he makes certain each pipe joint as they come together are in level line and tightly sealed-preventing any future leak and resultant pavement collapses. Does he check the pipe by crawling down the open slope between two walls of dirt or does he hang over the 20-foot deep trench and peer into the hole? Is fear of closed in spaces greater than fear of heights? I had a dread of both! "MY VOLUNTEER CAREER" After my retirement from the City of Warren in 1988 I did not take part in much volunteer activity. That changed in 1996 when Warren Mayor Mark Steenbergh called me and asked to meet with him at the City Hall. It turned out that he had decided to organize a "Community Development Corporation' as a non-profit agency to build new houses in South Warren and to work on bettering community activities. I accepted a position on the Board of Directors and the corporation was formally organized shortly thereafter. The City supported it with initial grants of start-up funds and providing services of some City personnel and offices (City Attorney, Building Division, Engineering Division and Planning Department). A consultant was hired to assist with grant writing and survey work, and one of the first projects was a community survey under a Police Department grant to determine how the community saw its needs and what resources were available, with Oakland University students and personnel doing the compilation and report writing. With this data, the CDC began training in home construction and real estate work. We did one house first, then three, and then seven, eventually building over 30 new ranch and colonial homes in various parts of the City. I served in every official position and on every committee during the succeeding eleven years. On average I spent about 3,000 volunteer hours per year with the CDC and participated in every community activity (park children events, pumpkin give-a ways, auctions, dinners, etc.) After about four years of operating from temporary spaces, the CDC rented a small section of the old police department building at Nine Mile and Memphis and hired a full time Executive Director (Dora Mattucci of Washington, MI) and a professional project manager. With the workload increasing, it was only a couple of years before we purchase a one-story building with a spacious basement and began its renovation into business operations (with assistance from me in giving a grant for landscaping, purchase and renovation of about $40,000). The site is at Van Dyke and Cadillac, right in the heart of the Van Dyke business community. While we prospered in the early years, we became involved in one venture that was costly both financially and progress wise. This was an attempt to buy about ten acres of nearly vacant land at Sherwood and Eight Mile from the R.C. Mahon Trust group and its lessee the Chrysler Corporation. The site was to be developed into some 30 homes for low and moderate income families, giving the area a big morale boost. Unfortunately, a sale of the Chrysler Corporation and a change in personnel at the top positions caused the project to be delayed (and then finally dropped by us after we began losing money on some purchased sites a total lack of income from the property venture During this time the CDC worked with the area non-profit groups to try to aid businesses with special events and grant planning (called the Van-8 Mile Corridor Project) in conjunction with forming new self-help neighborhood groups to fix neglected homes and lots. Progress was slow but steady until the sales market tanked and we could not sell homes we had already completed. With cuts in staff and funding, the CDC is in dire straits. "THE HISTORICAL SOCIETY" The other area where I have recently devoted quite a lot of volunteer hours is the Warren Historical & Genealogical Society, the private non-profit leg of the historical preservation effort in Warren. Unlike most of the members, I have not been involved with the area's history as a big part of my life (although I have lived in south Warren since 1934). My knowledge of the historical aspects of the Village are all second hand, except for some infrequent visits to the park during the 4th of July celebrations in the Village. While it may seem odd that someone who grew up in the area paid little attention to what was occurring around him except to keep track of what businesses were available to serve the family, it was true. Even after spending ~o years in the Marine Corps in the South Pacific during 1944-1945 and four years at the University of Missouri during 1946-1950 and would return to Warren and find little changed from what I expected to find. I only became interested in the historical aspect after watching the reconstruction of the Bunert School Museum and admiring what such a small group of dedicated people could achieve. After watching the historical concept take hold in the Village, it seemed to be something that I could relate to make a contribution to. My conception that the effort seemed to be concentrated too much on the Village was partly confirmed but even after making an effort to involve the communities of Base Line and Van Dyke did I find an almost complete lack of interest in saving older structures, documenting the lives of distinguished citizens or contributing financially to any effort to do so. I was (am) pleased to be part of the program honoring citizens each year for past endeavors and to utilize my journalistic background and personal history to help put together a book on the history of the City of Warren. Before leaving this essay it would seem appropriate that I mention some of the people I met over the years who were, in my estimation, special in some way of another. (This, of course, includes my parents, who as a couple just out of their 20th years, started a family and became adept at bringing up three boys without much help from their own families, and who always took time to be involved in their activities-whether it was playing baseball or games around the house-and to teach them good manners and fair play) But outside of the family, I met such great people as my grade school teachers-Miss Day (English), Miss Nystrom (arithmetic), Miss Hiljer (history) or Miss Carlson (principal)- and the Superintendent of Van Dyke Schools (Max Thompson), all of whom instilled in me a desire to do good work and succeed at whatever I tried to do. I made good friends in the Marine Corps with a small group of guys who spent two years together and all came back home safely if not exactly sound. At work after college I met local politicians and charitable agency leaders who guided me along paths I never anticipated taking. I was especially impressed with the leadership ability of Mayor Arthur Miller, the skill of Paul VanDenBranden (my boss at the Department of Public Service) and City Engineer Kenneth Van Hoelst (who never let politicians or developers persuade him to approve plans or programs that were not in the best interests of the City. I am especially proud to say that I have worked with the very finest and most dedicated persons possible at the Community Development Corporation of Warren (a non-profit housing and community based organization), being Executive Director Dora Mattucci and Project Manager Kevin Centala. The same can be said of the dedicated volunteers at the Warren Historical & Genealogical Society, who put in an incredible amount of time as needed to get the various projects organized and completed. Additional historical note by historian Wesley Arnold. Fred continued to be active in community affairs even at his advanced age and sometimes poor health. I provided Fred with a few hundred pages of Warren History that I had written and Sue Keffer and I encouraged Fred to edit these and add his experience to these. This hopefully became the book "From pathways to Freeways the Story of Warren Michigan." The Warren Historical Society paid for its printing and sells it. I am sure everyone will agree with is that Fred Gemmill has always been a delight to work with.

Hi John-

Here are some pictures. I named them, so hopefully that makes them somewhat self explanatory. If not, feel free to ask.

I was only 15 months old when my father died. Being that young, I don't even remember him. My earliest memories are of being 3 or 4, and back then I thought my step father was my dad. My mother remarried soon after my father died, and I had taken my step-father's last name. They divorced a few years later, and I went back to my father's name.

A few years after that, my mother (JoAnn) married John, a friend of my father's who lived down the street while they were growing up. According to how John tells the story, John and my mom used to date. John graduated, and decided to join the army and head to Korea (in 1965 the Korean war was over, but we still had troops stationed there). He introduced my mom to Vaun, so JoAnn would have someone to date that John trusted. They weren't supposed to get married, according to John, but that's what happened in July of 1968.

Vaun played football at Tulane University for a year, then went to Eastern Michigan University to study History. My mom told me he wanted to be a history teacher. He then joined the service and became an officer, eventually heading to Vietnam. While there, he received the Bronze Star for rescuing a crew member from a crashed helicopter.

I could probably write an entire book about this, and maybe someday I will. It is strange being 44 when my father died at 23. My grandparents never talked about him much. My mother didn't tell many stories about those days either, except to explain how poor we were while he was in the Army. Most people who talked about him just said what a great guy he was. Not much to go on to get an idea of what someone is like. I went with my grandparents to Washington DC a few times, and they still cried when they visited his grave. They carried that sadness all of their lives.

I once was contacted by a friend of his who was bunked by him in Vietnam, and he invited me to a Veteran's reunion in Washington DC during the 4th of July week in 2005. Mike had really nice things to say about my father, and clarified the way he died. Nobody in my family would tell me much, except that he was shot in the head.

Mike told me that the M16s they used in those days had a trigger guard that could come undone. My father had been out on patrol (recon mission) for many hours straight, and became victim of what Mike called "combat fatigue." His trigger guard off, he lifted his rifle and the trigger snagged on a strap, causing the gun to go off as the barrel was pointed at his chin. He died quickly.

None of the other people at the Veterans reunion knew or remembered my father, which was disappointing. It was still cool to meet them.

A couple of years later I went with our HS Band (I was the MS Band director at the time) to Washington DC and was able to share with the students some stories about him, and show them his name on the wall. That was an awesome, although a little awkward, moment as well.

This is probably more information than you wanted, but it's not often I get to share. Thank you for doing this.

Green Patrick Warren City Council Vice President, City Council 2020

Green Patrick is our State Representative. He is serving a partial term and first full term in the House of Representatives. He represents the 28th District, which comprises the city of Center Line and the western portion of the city of Warren.

In his role as representative, Green will work with fellow representatives and fight for the values of the constituents he represents. Green will work to improve funding for education at all levels; to bring balance to the tax system; to bring sustainable jobs to Michigan; and to protect our environment.

As a member of the Warren City Council since 2007, Green has worked with the challenges of cities facing reduced resources. By taking a leadership role in the budget process, Green made sure Warren consistently provided strong public safety in the form of firefighters, EMTs and police officers. While on the city council, Green's priorities included bringing significant new business investment to Warren, increasing the tax base and creating more good paying-jobs.

Green is the youngest of six children. His parents, James and Mary Ellen Green, are retired teachers from Fitzgerald and Warren Consolidated Schools, and his father was a prisoner of war in World War II. His siblings have all stayed locally and in the greater Detroit area to live, work and raise their families.

Green has served in leadership roles with the YMCA and volunteered for many nonprofits such as Focus Macomb, Winning Futures, Automation Alley, Kiwanis Club and others.

Green attended the University of Detroit and is currently an insurance agent and partner in an insurance agency located in Sterling Heights.

Green and his wife, Pilar Ferry-Green, have six children: three boys and three girls, ranging in age from 13 to 23.

He has served as Warren City Council Vice President, on the Board of Zoning Appeals 2008, in the Warren Council 2007, and was Ex-Officio on Employee Retirement Board of Trustees

Clem retired from the Center Line Water Department on 3 MAR 1956 (and was replaced by his son Vincent's brother-in law, Ralph Hiller). He then began working for St. Clement's Parish as a sexton/janitor for the church and school[1]. One of his duties was to ring the Angelus Bell in the steeple of the old St. Clement Church (1880-1967) at 6:00 a.m., Noon and again at 6:00 p.m. He retired again around 1974 and later died from complication of diabetes on 30 MAR 1977. His last words, spoken to his children at his bedside, were "take a lot of pictures of your children and love them". The

[1] his uncle Bernard "Ben" Grobbel had been the sexton at St. Clement's for many years in the early part of the 20th century, beginning some time between 1900 & 1910 (U.S. Census records list his occupation as "farmer" in 1900 and "sexton" in 1910)

Grobbel Mike local historian and creator of the best Center Line History website and newsgroup. He has collaborated on several history books including the Center line 75 Anniversary. He is a true historian and I am very proud of this man.

Biography of Michael Vincent Grobbel Michael V. Grobbel was born at Holy Cross Hospital, Detroit, MI in 1952 to Virginia (Hiller) Grobbel and Vincent Grobbel, who made their home on Godin Ave. in Center Line. Virginia was born in 1927 at her parent's home in Center Line on Engleman Ave. near Lawrence. Similarly, Vincent was born in 1923 at his parent's home on Central Ave. in Center Line. Vincent was the son of Marcella (Peters) Grobbel and Clement Grobbel, a decorated US Army soldier who fought the Bolshevik Red Army in North Russia during the winter of 1918-1919. Clement would later be appointed the City of Center Line's first police chief. Mike was a 12-year student at the St. Clement schools in Center Line. Upon graduation from St. Clement High School he attended General Motors Institute (Kettering University) in Flint, MI, graduating with a Bachelor's Degree in Mechanical Engineering. In 1982, he was awarded a Master of Science in Industrial Engineering and Operations Research by Wayne State University. Kathy Ann Yancy and Michael Vincent Grobbel were married in 1974 at St.

Clement church in Center Line, MI. They are the parents of Erin M. Grobbel and Phillip M. Grobbel. In 1977 Mike and Kathy moved to Sterling Heights (MI) and in 2005 they downsized into a condo in Shelby Twp., MI. Mike's professional career began as a GMI co-op student with the Fisher Body Division of General Motors at the GM Technical Center in Warren, MI. Upon graduation from General Motors Institute, he was hired as a manufacturing engineer with responsibilities that included process and tooling design for sheet metal subassemblies. During the early 1980s he was deeply involved in Fisher Body's introduction of robotic welding and material handling operations on the plant floor. Later as a manufacturing engineering manager during his 31 year career with General Motors, he and his teams were responsible for the processes and tooling used to make the bodies of cars such as the Oldsmobile Cutlass Ciera, Pontiac Grand Prix and Cadillac CTS. Mike was appointed to the Sterling Heights (MI) Planning Commission in 1979, where he served for 7 years, the last two as its chairman. As a hobby in the late 1980s he began researching his family history, discovering that five of his eight sets of great-great grandparents had been St. Clement parishioners. During the 1990s he volunteered his time as a Cub Scout leader and also as a parent on various committees for his local school district. In the early 2000s Mike began creating his own personal web pages on the Internet, using them to share his family genealogy information and old photos from his ancestors' albums. Those pages caught the attention of Wesley Arnold, who for many years had been collecting copies of old photos taken in the Center Line and Warren area. A collaboration ensued, with many photos from Wesley's collection being added to the centerline.grobbel.org web site. In 2017 Mike, along with a group of folks who shared a common interest in the history of Center Line, organized and incorporated the Historical Society of Center Line.

Grobbel, Alton C"Oz", St Clement 1943, Center Line city council member 1976 Great teacher at Center Line High School, English, Science 1952- Was in St Clement's first school band Played at World's Fair in Chicago in 1934 a beloved teacher who taught at Center line high School in the 1960s-1980s who was well liked by all. First he was a good teacher and a kind person and a good father and grandfather. He was the second child of Marcella and Clement Grobbel, He served in the US Army in World War II Company B, 151st. He inspired many students and some became writers. And he inspired writers to be better writers. You must read the story his daughter tells about Mitch Albom at grobbel.org entitled An Amazing Gift by Kathy (Grobbel) Canapini. Well Oz has managed to live into is 90s and keeps getting invited to every reunion. I was amazed how sharp he still is. When at a reunion last year I was amazed when he chimed up and stated there is Wes Arnold the historian. And I had not talked to him for some time. I am going to ask him to write an autobiography. But what is unique about him is that he was kind to all and inspiring to all. I could tell how he inspired me but this is about him so I will just say he did inspire us.

Grobbel, Clement decorated World War I Veteran was among 500 American soldiers in the Polar Bear Force sent to Russia to put down the Bolshevik uprising. He gave up the police chief's job in Center Line to work for the water department until his retirement. Here is his official biography from grobbel.org

Clement Anthony GROBBEL [17], (b. 02 NOV 1895 in Warren Twp., Macomb Co., MI, d. 30 MAR 1977 in Detroit, Wayne Co., MI) was the oldest child of Anthony GROBBEL[16] and Mary MINICK. He married Marcella Leontine PETERS on 19 OCT 1921. Marcella PETERS (b. 31 MAR 1902, d. 10 FEB 1937) was the daughter of Henry A. PETERS (b. 10 MAR 1872 to Anthony PETERS and Margaret CAMPBELL, d. 13 OCT 1943) and Esther C. HAYES (b. 28 MAR 1875 , d. 03 JUL 1942). Clem and Marcella had eight children, all of whom were born in Center Line, Macomb Co., MI. Marcella died during childbirth in Detroit, Wayne Co., MI., and is buried in the St. Clement Cemetery in Center Line, MI. Clement is buried in the Mt. Olivet Cemetery in Detroit, MI.. Clem was 22 years old when the U.S. entered World War I. He was soon drafted into the Army and on 27 JUN 1918, he arrived at Camp Custer, near Battle Creek, MI. There he began training with Rifle Company I of the 339th Infantry Regiment of the National Army. The 339th became known as "Detroit's Own Regiment", since 75% of the enlisted men and officers were from the Detroit area (upon their return to the U.S. in 1919, they took to calling themselves the "Polar Bears"). On 14 JUL 1918, the 339th broke camp and boarded trains for New York City, from which they sailed for England on 22 JUL 1918. After another month of training with British weapons, the 5,500 men boarded troop transport ships on 22 AUG 1918 and sailed for Archangel, Russia, which they reached on 4 SEP 1918.

The 339th was placed under British command and spread out along six different fronts surrounding Archangel. Their orders were to replace the existing French and British troops of the Allied Expeditionary Forces who were engaging the Bolsheviks (Communists), however there was never a clearly defined objective. Companies I, K, L and M were assigned to the Railroad Front, which was 100 miles to the south near the village of Obozerskaya. The conditions were miserable for the troops, the marshy terrain was flooded with standing water, and the first heavy snows came on 15 OCT 1918. On 11 NOV 1918, the World War in Europe ended with the Armistice, while in Russia, the fighting continued. By Nov. 18th, when the last of the 339th finally received their British-issued winter uniforms, temperatures were consistently below zero degrees Fahrenheit. That winter was very difficult for the poorly equipped members of the 339th. Their British commanders never ventured out into the field, thus they did not understand how inadequate both their weapons and winter gear were. There were regular engagements with the Bolo's as they were called, but what resulted was basically a stalemate. Despite being ill-equipped and out manned, the 339th was able to inflict more casualties than they received in battle. However the bitter cold and sickness were also formidable enemies and more than 200 of their members were either killed in action or succumbed to illness and were buried in Russia. By April, an American General, W.P. Richardson, had arrived to visit the 339th out in the field and he observed first-hand their deplorable situation. His report set in motion the removal of the 339th, which began in June when they were replaced by British volunteers who continued the holding action until the British leadership gave up and totally withdrew from Russia in October of 1919. The main elements of the 339th arrived back in Detroit on July 4, 1919 and were treated to a warm homecoming, complete with a parade and picnic on Belle Isle. Clem was never one to reminisce about his war-time experiences as a "Polar Bear", so the written record and his medals will have to speak for him. On March 4, 1920, the United States Secretary of War issued General Orders No. 14, Section IX, which awarded the Distinguished Service Cross (medal no.1800) to: "Clement A.

Grobbel (Army serial no. 2051645) corporal, Company I, 339th Infantry, 85th Division. For extraordinary heroism in action near Emtsa, Russia, November 4, 1918. When attacked by a largely superior force, in order to deliver a more effective fire, Corpl. Grobbel voluntarily left his trench and took up a position on top of the railroad bank. Although exposed to heavy machine gun fire, he held his position and fired his Lewis gun until the enemy was repulsed. The conduct of this noncomissioned officer was an important factor in the successful defense of the position. Residence at enlistment: R.F.D. No. 2, Warren, Mich." He was also awarded the French "Croix de Guerre" medal by the French military commander of the Allied Expeditionary Forces in North Russia, along with a certificate dated January 30, 1919. The Distinguished Service Cross is our nation's second highest military award for valor, ranking just below the Medal of Honor. Out of the 5,500 U.S. Soldiers who fought in Russia during WWI, only 23 were awarded the Distinguished Service Cross. Clem was discharged from the Army at Camp Custer on 17 JULY 1919 and given the sum of $314.35, which included a $60.00 bonus. His discharge papers indicated that he was “a millwright with an excellent character” Shortly after returning home, Clem met Marcella Peters. Years later, he told his children that “she was my first and only girlfriend”. Two years later they married and started raising a family on Central Ave. in Center Line, MI. Clem enjoyed tinkering with mechanical things and these talents were put to good use when he started his own cement business. During the late 1920’s, he laid many of the sidewalks in Center Line, as well as made cement blocks for use in building the many basements that he dug with a team of horses. His “cement factory” and equipment was located on a nearby lot on Dale Avenue (this lot is where he eventually built a new home for his growing family). The Depression was not kind to him and he had to sell his equipment to satisfy his creditors, and since his parents had provided their farm acreage as collateral for his loans, it had to be sold also. Clem had been a volunteer fireman for the Village of Center Line, so he sought employment as a Policeman, beginning around 1931 . He was the first appointed Police Chief for the City of Center Line and served from 31 MAR 1936 through 27 MAY 1937, at which time he transferred to the Water Department as Superintendent. Following the death of Marcella, Clem hired a succession of housekeepers to look after his children while he was at work. One of these housekeepers was Lucille Kunath, who later married Charles L. Grobbel (Clem's first cousin). On 01 JUN 1940, Clem married Roxanna J. KENNEDY Carney (b. 17 MAY 1894, d. 19 AUG 1980), who was the widow of Edward CARNEY (a member of the first Center Line City Council).

Grobbel, Mike He is our new Center Line Historian. Since he is the most promising person who has now done the much history research and has a terrific web page on Center Line History I am giving to give him my historical collection and the title Center Line Historian. Good luck collecting any compensation (financially at least) for that title. Actually that title and $5 will get you a coffee almost anywhere. All kidding aside Mike, Martha Burczyk and Wesley Arnold are virtually it as far as historical researchers in the last twenty years. These three are wonderful people and have put much time and work into preserving our history.

the state's modern system of highways. M-97, also known as Groesbeck Highway is named in his honor. He died in 1953.

Groesbeck Alex J Governor State of Michigan grew up in Warren. The only governor of Michigan to come from Macomb County, Alexander J. Groesbeck was born on a farm at the northeast corner of Mound Road and Twelve Mile Road (present site of the General Motors Technical Center complex) but moved to Mt. Clemens with his family after his father was elected sheriff. He finished his elementary schooling there, graduated from the University of Michigan in 1893 and then began a long legal career in Detroit. He was elected to his first of three terms as governor in 1920, where he became famous for his prison reforms, governmental reorganization and expansion of state highways. It was in this latter area that earned him distinction as he established an automobile title system and fostered the construction of new road systems, one of the most prominent of which was a proposal to build a north-south highway to relieve traffic along Gratiot between Detroit and Mt. Clemens. When finally completed after he left office, the State Administrative Board named the roadway in his honor. A State

It should be noted also, that he served two terms as the State's Attorney General in 1917-1919, and became one of Michigan's most successful lawyers after his public service years. He never married. Groesbeck Louis Warren Clerk 1854-56, Supervisor 1860-62, 65-66, 70-78 One of the pioneer families of Warren, and another of its prominent members was Louis Groesbeck, born in 1802 to a Groesbeck William and Therese Beaufait on the Beaufait farm just north of Detroit, where he lived until he was 28 years old. He married the former Catherine St. Aubin in 1832, and they raised ten children together in Warren. Their home, near the intersection of Ten Mile and Sherwood (then called State Road), evidently was something of a community meeting place.

In 1837, when the state formed the townships, the State Legislature authorized the calling of a meeting of citizens to elect its first slate of officers and they met at the Groesbeck farm on March 11, 1837. Louis' brother, William, won the office of Clerk but was succeeded after two terms by Louis who stayed in that office through the next three elections (held yearly at an Annual Meeting). Oddly enough, a second brother, Charles, followed Louis in the Clerk's office. Louis was not finished yet, however, and was elected Supervisor (the top Township office) for five out of the next seven years. (Surprise!, the family was not out of it yet as Francis, son of William, was elected a Justice of the Peace in 1855, and Charles began another career as Supervisor!). By Fred Gemmill.

Groesbeck Louis Warren Clerk 1854-56, Supervisor 1860-62, 65-66, 70-78 One of the pioneer families of Warren, and another of its prominent members was Louis Groesbeck, born in 1802 to a Groesbeck William and Therese Beaufait on the Beaufait farm just north of Detroit, where he lived until he was 28 years old.

He married the former Catherine St. Aubin in 1832, and they raised ten children together in Warren. Their home, near the intersection of Ten Mile and Sherwood (then called State Road), evidently was something of a community meeting place. In 1837, when the state formed the townships, the State Legislature authorized the calling of a meeting of citizens to elect its first slate of officers and they met at the Groesbeck farm on March 11, 1837. Louis' brother, William, won the office of Clerk but was succeeded after two terms by Louis who stayed in that office through the next three elections (held yearly at an Annual Meeting). Oddly enough, a second brother, Charles, followed Louis in the Clerk's office. Louis was not finished yet, however, and was elected Supervisor (the top Township office) for five out of the next seven years. (Surprise!, the family was not out of it yet as Francis, son of William, was elected a Justice of the Peace in 1855, and Charles began another career as Supervisor!). By Fred Gemmill.

Guest Edgar Edgar Albert Guest (August 20, 1881, Birmingham, England – August 5, 1959, Detroit, Michigan) (aka Eddie Guest) was a prolific English-born American poet who was popular in the first half of the 20th century and became known as the People's Poet. In 1891, Guest came with his family to the United States from England. After he began at the Detroit Free Press as a copy boy and then a reporter, his first poem appeared December 11, 1898. He became a naturalized citizen in 1902. For 40 years, Guest was widely read throughout North America, and his sentimental, optimistic poems were in the same vein as the light verse of Nick Kenny, who wrote syndicated columns during the same decades. From his first published work in the Detroit Free Press until his death in 1959, Guest penned some 11,000 poems which were syndicated in some 300 newspapers and collected in more than 20 books, including A Heap o' Livin' (1916) and Just Folks (1917). Guest was made Poet Laureate of Michigan, the only poet to have been awarded the title. His popularity led to a weekly Detroit radio show which he hosted from 1931 until 1942, followed by a 1951 NBC television series, A Guest in Your Home. When Guest died in 1959, he was buried in Detroit's Woodlawn Cemetery. His great-niece Judith Guest is a successful novelist who wrote Ordinary People. In Warren a local library at 14036 Stephens east of Schoenherr was dedicated in May 1960 and named after Mr Guest. From Wikipedia.

Guinn, John posted by Ann Hanrahan Calvo
St. Clement grade school 1 - 8, Wolfe for 9th grade, then my family moved to Fraser in 1970. Any St. Clement High or CenterLine High class of 73 reunion news? Some sad information to share: John Guinn passed away last week on Friday June 28. He taught at St. Clement High School, and played the organ beautifully at Masses in the 60's. He also wrote for the Detroit Free Press as music critic. Funeral will be Wednesday July 3 at St. Ambrose in Grosse Pointe.
Dan Paddock: GUINN, JOHN ROCKNE 2013-06-30 GUINN JOHN ROCKNE Age 77 of Grosse Pointe, Michigan was born in Charleston, West Virginia. He passed away Friday, June 28th. He is survived by his wife Catherine Guinn and sister Joyce Francis Guinn of Germantown, Wisconsin. Services will be held Wednesday, July 3rd at St. Ambrose parish in Grosse Pointe Park at 11:00 a.m. preceded by an hour of family gathering.

John was a musician, educator, and journalist for the Detroit Free Press. After earning degrees from Notre Dame, he moved to the Detroit area where he started a teaching position at St. Clement in Center Line, Michigan. Thereafter, his teaching career led to the University of Detroit and most recently, until his death, to Wayne State University's school of music. His journalist pursuits included being the music critic for the Free Press where he covered the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. John was known for his vast knowledge in many cultural fields. He played the organ for many catholic churches in the archdiocese. He had shaped the lives of so many through his teaching and civic involvement. It was a privilege to know him and his astounding range of talents will be missed by the many people he has educated and inspired throughout the years. - See more at: http://deathnotices.michigan.com/view-single.php…
